"SAVAGELAND"

(By M. A. B.)

The local young people, representing some of our best musical and dramatic talent, on Friday evening last presented in the Grand Theatre, in the form of "Savageland," a musical travesty on Sherlock Holmes to a capacity house. The play, although a trifle too heavy for amateurs, was well handled by the cast, and a number of choruses and tuneful songs were distributed through the course of the performance, which elicited well merited applause from the large audience. The opening chorus of 27 voices, with a stage setting depicting a scene in the Catskill Mountains, was well put on. The play is centered around the search for a missing heiress, involving considerable detective work on the part of Sherlock Combs, the wonderful detective. The piece abounds in funny situations all through the two acts of the play, which kept the audience in good humour all during the performance. Special mention might be made of the marching song and chorus "Ho for the West," and the first act closed with the singing by Sherlock Combs of a good song on the wonders of this great detective act, in which the full chorus took part.

Between acts Mr. Tonks sang the song recently written by J. M. Waggett, entitled "Won't You Laugh Little Girlie Instead," and C. C. Ross gave a monologue skit.

The opening scene of the second act, a cowboy wedding and dance, by Buckskin Buddy and chorus, made a big hit with the audience. The Indian chorus and dance, with Head Much Scalp 'Em, the big chief, as soloist, was well staged, and the costumes were high-class and gave the impression of a real Indian scene.

The principals of the piece were George Hefford as "Birdie Magoggin," C. E. Sexton as "Jake Heinz," D. Lash as "Sherlock Combs," V. C. Nichol as "Buckskin Buddy," B. L. Dawdy as "Gilly Clay," D. Sutherland as "Chief Head Much Scalp 'Em," Miss Elsie Tait as the "Quaker Maid," Mrs. B. L. Dawdy as "Daffodil Doty," Mrs. Botford as "The Marble Lady," and Mrs. A. M. Belfie as "Ysobel." The chorus girls were the Messes Shepherd, Peters, Dawdy, Trail, Ross, Pollin, Warr, Northcott, Matz, and Messes Engelbrecht and McCune; Messes Hamilton, Belfie, Brookes, Avey, Tonks, McCune and Dick as chorus men. Mrs. J. N. Anderson, at the piano, and L. de Grote, violinist. Mrs. Shepherd gave valuable assistance as prompter. B. L. Dawdy acted as director and manager of the play, with Miss Elsie Tait as director of the choruses and dances. The stage scenery and settings, which elicited most favorable comments, were made under the direction of George Dirk, a local contractor. The Indian costumes, etc., by Mrs. Dirk. A dance followed the play, which was well attended.

Thoughts on Easter

Over the whole world today rings the anthem of resurrection. Beginning in the far Orient it runs, with the dawn to the limits of the Occident, is sounded from every church bell up to heaven like a pean of hope and promise. The winter is past, and Nature has set man again the lesson, which since time began she has spread out before him in the earth, that book which may be read by the unlearned savage as well as civilized man. There is no death, there is no effort that sinks into the dim void and becomes naught, there is no cessation of soul influence. The summer comes and its glory passes, the harvest time of our lives wanes, the fields are brown and barren, and looking over them sadly we grieve that all of our hopes were not brought to fruition. When the frosts of age cover our heads we sometimes sigh with the great soul that voiced his agony in a dark hour: "Youth is a blunder, manhood struggle, and old age regret."

Yet we have lived and loved, and that is within itself a boon. From the graves where were laid our crucified joy, our blameless offerings to onward destiny, our loved and noble ideals, shall arise a glorified spirit to guide others down the rough way to the place where the "great light" shines. No path of sorrow in the vale of life is virgin to the naked feet of our shrinking souls. Wherever the way is deepest and the shadows fall darkest, there trod the martyrs of the ages and though they found the sepulchre at the end of the journey, being dead, they yet live and speak with unending utterance.

Christ is risen from the dead! Long ages passed when it seemed to the waiting nations that He was yet in the tomb, and in the sleep of death had forgotten the world. Toll stripes and anguish were the portion of His people, for the poor are His. Wickedness wore the robe and crown and filled the earth with sighing. Even then there were brave hearts that looked up through the clouds and listened for the anthem of the resurrection. It was heard at last, and liberty of thought, faith and conscience were proclaimed. The elements of terror are cast off and lie in the open sepulchre and with them are the broken shackles and rendered fetters.

Communication

To the Editor Empress Express

Dear Sir:—

All peoples living under the German flag have a reputation for fair-mindedness, so, in accordance with that tradition I would like to point out that which I consider are a misrepresentation of true facts, which occurred in your issue of March 29th. In the report of the case against Henry Doseh and Leo Wiegierneck. As there stated the charge against them is that of (in Doseh's case)—"Trading with the enemy; by sending sums of money to Germany, via the United States and Holland;" and Wiegierneck is charged with assisting Doseh in sending, etc., etc.

Now, as stated thus, the impression will certainly prevail that these men have been sending monies to help Germany, which will greatly injure them in the peoples estimation. As a matter of fact the "true" charge against them is: "That Henry Doseh did on a certain date (nearly two years ago), through some friend of Wiegierneck's in Holland, send to his mother the sum of ten dollars ($10), which money she needed badly, and she being a resident of an enemy country, thus rendered him liable to the "technical" charge of "Trading with the enemy," and I would point out that it occurred only once, not repeatedly.

I believe I am not in the least pro-Germans, but in the interest of common justice a wrong impression should be corrected; and I might add that the man who would turn down his mother under any circumstances would be a "yellow dog" indeed.

Yours for fair play.

Belgian Relief

Miss Janet Botsford, Sec. Empress Chapter I.O.D.E. Empress, Alberta.

Madam:—

We acknowledge receipt of your favor of the 15th inst., enclosing draft for $100, as the generous contribution of the Empress Chapter I.O.D.E. towards our Fund. Please accept our heartfelt thanks for this donation for which we enclose herewith our official receipt.

This donation is doubly welcome, as the Commission for Relief in Belgium is at present passing through a crisis on account of lack of funds. It is, as a matter of fact, facing a monthly deficit of $3,000,000. Hence it is more than ever in need of the full hearted support of the public.

The American members of the Commission have been asked by the Germans to remain at their posts, and the work in Belgium is therefore proceeding under exactly the same guarantees as hitherto.

Furthermore, an arrangement has just been concluded by the Relief Commission, with the British Government on one side, and the German Government on the other, by which an acceptable plan for Relief Commission ships between North American Ports and Rotterdam, has been agreed upon. This has enabled the Commission to forward without delay the sixteen steamers already loaded or loading in American ports. Arrangements have been made to avoid any delay in forwarding the much needed further steamers, as soon as sufficient supplies come to hand.

We thank you very much for your kind interest in our work and beg to state that we would greatly appreciate any efforts that might be made to form a strong committee to start a campaign to raise funds for Belgian Relief, in Empress.

Yours truly,

A. de JARDIN, Hon. Sec.-Treasurer.

(Any persons wishing to contribute to this fund, kindly leave their contribution, with Mrs. N. D. Storey, Sec. Treas.)

"There he was directed to your note, but he found nobody who could tell him anything."

"Why no. Mother's staying with my uncle, and the place is shut up. I never thought of that!"

"Well, it didn't matter, for Mr. Ciprian just came straight here. Only as he knew there'd been crooked goings on, he wanted to find out whether his boy was here, before he came in. And he wanted, too, to find out about other 'rascals'."

"And a significant look, Mahan gathered, that the man to intimate Ciprian's wish to learn whether the man who had tried to murder him was in residence at Heath Hill."

"When he looked out of the garden door, he saw some one—the garden door, he saw some one—he stepped back and crept round behind the house so as not to be seen."

"And there it was I found a man in a window—when I heard a tap at my window, as was usual with me, and it was when I saw him, I saw how he looked."

"Tell me—why didn't you let anybody know?"

"The housekeeper looked her straight in the eyes."

"You ask me that," she said quickly.

"Ah, but you always said you didn't believe in me, told me that the boy wasn't safe here!"

"Mrs. Lowndes looked forward, so that her voice could only reach Mahan's ear."

"I believed you so much," she said, "that I knew his father was not safe either!"

"Oh!"

"I said to myself, 'he can deal with them before he's strong and well, but when I've brought him in, and unarmaged him, the staircase in the ballroom wing, that's never used, and I've kept him ever since, and there I mean to keep him till he'll himself, if he ever is—and till he's able to take his own part against those who don't like him well.'"

"Mahan was frightened. It seemed to her much more alarming that Mrs. Lowndes should take such pains to keep Ciprian out of the house, than that she should have been doing with herself all day," he asked, "I have never looked out of the window since a chance of a word with you—beyond my own words, and I can't call you as you write a story."

"I've been with Julius," murmured Mahan.

"Lucky little beggar, to have so much of your time and attention! He'll be very lucky if he continues to get as much as he has been getting, don't you know?"

"There was a note of warning in his voice which made Mahan glinch at him quickly."

"He modded."

"I had a scheme on foot," he said, "to keep him away from you, but that is at present I'm not supposed to know anything about it. I've brought you word."

"Mahan looked anxiously but doubtfully into his face."

"Who told you?" she asked quickly.

"Better not say any more now, but I'm sure you know."

"I'm most awfully anxious to do anything I can for you, you know, Miss Wright, but I don't bear and neither you calling me a tame cat."

"I beg your pardon. I'm very sorry. I ought not to have said that. It was very rude," she murmured.

"Not at all. I'm not at all sure that you're wrong, you know. But if I am a tame cat, at least I don't want to scratch—by any means."

"On the contrary, I want to purr very nicely, and to act sort of Puss in Boots to you, and to know that you know when things look fishy, and give you the straight tip, so that you can keep your wits about you."

"You're very good," said Mahan, looking at him with a smile.

"Indeed she began to feel quite grateful to this, the one member of the family who seemed to be so kindly disposed towards her, and she began to feel more at ease with the manner of her answer, and, bending to speak in a low voice, she stood on the hearth-rug, and of the fire, waiting for the last word, he said."

"And look here. If at any time you're anything you want done, anything you would like me to help you in, you may rely on me absolutely. I should be only too delighted to do you any service with anybody. Lady Moorhoughton for instance."

(To Be Continued.)

Man—Your opinion in a matter. I would you advise me to take $100 to help me out of a tight place?

Legal Friend—By all means. Man—Very good! Lend me ten. Legal Friend—That's all right. My fee for legal advice is $10, and we'll just call it square.

Man—Now, tell me, it is only fair for me to say that I'm a 'somewhat'.

Mary—That's all right, dear. We'll take it in turns. I'll do to your chapel with you one Sunday, and you can come to my church the next.

Boy Scout Notes

Development of Character as Important Now as at Any Time in History

Some months ago at a meeting of the Moral Education League of Great Britain a paper was read in which it was alleged and lauded that in the British system of education "We subordinate the development of character to the acquisition of knowledge." The author of the paper asked the question: Why should not the acquisition of knowledge and the development of character go hand in hand?

It does in the application of Boy Scout training. People the world over are beginning to realize that the picturesque uniform and uncanny tales of the Scout council possibilities of educational and moral progress of a hard and serious character. Scouting is a moral force—a game, perhaps—but a serious game, a matter of high importance, inspiring and uplifting every detail of a boy's life.

It is a form of education that is important now as at any time in the world's history. How to Fight Sow Thistle

Clean Seed the Remedy

In fighting sow thistle we must recognize that this weed spreads from seed and not from root. Therefore, prevent the plant from producing seed and all the present trouble will be removed. It is not so simple as it seems. It is not so simple as it seems. It is not so simple as it seems.

Various methods of attack have been advocated such as crowding out the weed by a persistent perennial, smothering the plant with paper, straw, manure, or by a quickly growing crop, and starving the plant by preventing it from forming green leaves. The crowding out method is the most successful, but it is more permanent than the others. The smothering plan succeeds on small patches, but is not practicable on large areas. Many authorities advocate the starve plan or smothering with straw, but the best for eradicating this troublesome weed.

Plough six to eight inches deep in the autumn, if possible, but if pressure of work prevents autumn ploughing, then plough in the middle of June. At the first of July, begin the use of the foot-cultivator, working in the soil and root wherever the weeds are ready to show. In the fall, freeze in autumn. Plant for Using Grain Screenings

As High as Forty Dollars per Ton

The Fort William Grain Co., Fort William, Ont., recently purchased a local factory building which it is to convert into a plant for the production of grain screenings products. Hereafter there has been practically no market in Canada for the residue from the cleaning machinery of the grain elevators. The entire output of the elevators of this district has been purchased by American firms and shipped to Duluth and Minneapolis, with some shipments to Buffalo and New York City. This material is used as the principal element in certain kinds of cattle food. These screenings are usually sold at a price of $6 per ton, to high-grade "scalps" (practically no-grade grain), but for all grades thus far this season have averaged about $8.50 per ton, with a tendency toward much lower prices during the coming autumn months.

The Worth of Germany's Word

Another Scrap of Paper Thrown to the Winds

The German chancellor himself communicates to the world the dominion that having been solemn pledge of May 4 Germany has passed the intervening months in feverish preparations to break it, to tear it up like another scrap of paper and throw it to the winds. In March the question was not ripe for decision, in May it was not ripe, in now Germany is ready to enter upon a new career of assassination and war. What has changed the situation, asks the chancellor, and answers his own question. The first, the most important effect is that the number of our submarines has been very considerably increased, and equipped with last spring, and thereby by a firm basis for success has been established. Behind the shelter of his policy, concealing her construction work from the world, she has now and then brought some hint of it, the German government has been very well of the opportunity of the submarine trade to prepare for a resumption of hostilities.

Mr. P. B. Ostrom, informs us that he has a consignment of

"We sure made the mud and snow fly," said P. B.

Mr. J. O. Oliver is to be congratulated on the skill he has shown on the dressing of the windows of Mr. G. L. Brown's

The owner of a Ford car was hauled into court and fined for speeding. He paid the fine and cost cheerfully and seemed proud of the little machine.
But he got sore when he saw the Justice make his docket entry, "Jack Williamson fined for rushing the car." This is another case for the Social and Moral Reform League.—Ex.
